WHIG NOMINATIONS.
FOR CANAL COMMISSIONER,
MOSES POWNALL, Lancaster County.
FOR AUDITOR GENERAL,
ALEX. K. MCCLURE, Franklin Co.
SURVEYOR GENERAL,
CHRISTIAN MYERS, Clarion Co.
JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT,
THOS. A. BUDD, Philadelphia City.

THE CORNER STONE of the new Presbyterian Church at Daltonburg, will be laid (Providence permitting) on Saturday, the 17th inst., at 2 o'clock, P. M.—The ministers of all Christian denominations and the public generally are invited to be present.

H. S. HOWELL.

Reese Evans.

To-morrow, the 9th inst., is the day fixed upon for the execution of this unfortunate young man. His confession has been made and will be before the public in a few days. See notice in another column.

MISS Sturgeon, weighing 85 pounds, was caught in the Delaware River, a short distance below Belvidere, N. J., on Friday last. It was caught in a fish-basket. Messrs. McMurtrie & Bean, were the lucky chaps. This is the second one that has been taken in that neighborhood, within the last three weeks.

Whig State Convention.

We direct the attention of the reader to the Proceedings of the Whig State Convention, which will be found on the first page of to-day's "Jeffersonian."—Resolutions, strongly urging the sale of the public works, were adopted. These works are composed of the Eastern, Western, and Janina divisions of the Canal, and the Columbia and Portage Railroads. Their original cost was $15,056,077, and it is now proposed to sell them for the gross sum of $15,000,000, and to place that amount at the credit of the sinking fund for the payment of the public debt, and to make annual payments to the same fund out of the annual revenues until the debt can be extinguished. The debt of the State is $41,474,000, with an annual interest of about $2,000,000, and its revenue in 1852 was $3,351,767.

Mr. Budd, the nominee of the Convention, is a ripe scholar, and stands high as a member of the Philadelphia Bar. The interest of the great metropolis of this State demand that she should have a representation on the Supreme Bench, and we trust that the united, enthusiastic support of the whole Whig party will triumphantly erect him.

The October Election.

The approaching General Election will be an important one, as the following State and County Officers are to be elected, viz:

One Judge of the Supreme Court, for 15 years.
A President Judge, " 10 "
One Canal Commissioner, " 3 "
An Auditor General, " 3 "
A Survey General, " 3 "
One Member of Assembly, " 1 "
A District Attorney, " 3 "
A County Treasurer, " 2 "
One County Commissioner, " 3 "
A County Surveyor, " 3 "
One County Auditor, " 3 "
The State election will be held on Tuesday, October 11th.

Arrest for Larceny.

On Thursday forenoon last the Police arrested William Johnson, (who is from the neighborhood of Stroudsburg) for stealing $231.50, all in gold, from Condey McGegen, at Freemansburg. He broke open the trunk of Mr. McGegen, in the cabin of his boat, in which was also a package of notes amounting to $80, which the thief failed to find. When Johnson was arrested, the sum of $110.50 was found in his possession. He had expended the balance in purchasing new clothing and some articles of jewelry, most of which was returned and the money recovered. He confessed to the stealing & was handed over to Sheriff Bachman, who will take good care of the gentleman until next court.—Easton Argus.

Debt, State and National.

The Cincinnati Railroad record, makes the following estimate of the debt due by the general and State governments, municipal corporations, Railroad Companies, and private individuals:—

National debt,	$65,131,692
State debts,	202,557,762
Municipal debt,	70,000,000
Railroad debts,	250,000,000
Mercantile foreign debts,	150,000,000
Private domestic debts,	930,000,000
Aggregate,	$1,667,689,454

This is a frightful aggregate, but it is no larger than the reality. About one quarter of it is held abroad or on foreign account, the balance among citizens of the United States.

A few cases of Yellow fever have occurred in Philadelphia, within the past month; but the general health of the city is remarkably good.

The Whig Nominee for Judge of the Supreme Court.

The Inquirer in referring to the action of the Whig State Convention, speaks thus of the Candidate selected:

It has already been announced in our columns, that the Whig State Convention, which assembled at Haddington on Thursday last, after due consideration, nominated Thomas A. Budd, Esq., of this city, as the candidate of the party for Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.—The Convention was well attended, and its proceedings throughout were cordial and harmonious. Mr. Budd is a prominent, able and influential member of the Philadelphia Bar. He has had much experience as a lawyer, maintains a reputation of the highest character for manliness and integrity, while there are few men who deservedly enjoy a greater degree of popularity among his profession. He is modest and unobtrusive, and has never sought public position. Calm, thoughtful, well informed, and ripe of judgment, he possesses all the qualifications for the distinguished post for which he has been nominated, and will doubtless receive a liberal and enthusiastic support. A native of Philadelphia, widely known and generally esteemed, the selection cannot but be regarded as judicious under the circumstances, and it will be received with marked favor. Among the delegates of the Convention were many of the most distinguished men of the State, and the intelligence they gave of the prospects of the cause and the party, was of the most gratifying character. We look forward to the results of the campaign not only with hope, but with confidence. The prodigality and corruption that have characterized the management of our public works, have inspired a lively feeling of indignation throughout the entire Commonwealth, and the days of the existing dynasty may be regarded as numbered.

A Lucky Californian.

A letter from California relates many peculiar sights and incidents, one of which is about a rich young man having to turn washer-woman. "I have met a young man who at home moved in the best circles of society, and is a gentleman every inch of him, failing to make anything in the mines, went into a certain town, and actually took in washing, and cleansed for his bread, the filthy garments of those who, at home, he would not acknowledge as acquaintances. It was rather an amusing sight to see him at the wash tub, soaking and scrubbing the dirty linen of his motley patrons, swearing at his folly and upbraiding his luck.

Citizens' Bank, Caution!

Our neighborhood continues to be flooded with worthless notes of all denominations, purporting to be on the Citizens' Bank of Washington, D. C. Citizens' Bank of Baltimore, Md. Citizens' Bank of Cumberland, R. I. Citizens' Bank of Worcester, Mass. They are all genuine notes of the (broken) Citizens' Bank of Washington, D. C. and are altered by erasing the word Washington, and printing in Cumberland, or Worcester, &c. As this is done not on the plate, but on each note, they can with the same ease be altered into any Citizens' Bank in the land, and we would advise all who are not good judges to refuse all notes upon every Citizens' Bank, without regard to where they hail from.

There seems to be good reason to suppose that some one in our vicinity has a stock of these notes, and altering and issuing them in our midst as opportunity offers.

The denominations so far noticed are 20s, 10s, 5s, and 1s.

We understand that some two or three hundred dollars of these worthless notes have been offered by different individuals and at different times, at the Banking office in this town; and altogether the loss to our citizens must have been considerable; but having frequently called attention to these notes, we hope none of the readers of the Gazette are among the sufferers.—March Chalk Gazette.

The Yellow Fever at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3.—The number of deaths for the 24 hours ending this morning was 116, of which 87 were from fever and 9 unknown. The number of deaths for the week was 955, of which 804 were from fever.

The whole number of deaths since the 28th of May is 9,544, of which 7,213 were from fever.

[ANOTHER DESPATCH.]

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 2.—To day was observed by fasting and prayer. The stores were nearly all closed, and business generally suspended. The weather throughout the day has been very sultry. The number of deaths by the fever to-day was 103, being seven more than yesterday. The epidemic now begins to create havoc among the better classes.

A Man Shot by a Snake.

A letter in the Philadelphia Ledger states that a few days ago a man named Louman, storekeeper in Siddonsburg, York county, was out gunning, when he discovered a large snake, and in order quickly to secure it from running away he placed the butt of his rifle, loaded with a ball at the time, upon the body of the snake, with his hand directly across the muzzle. The snake, in its writhings to free itself, coiled around the gunstock, and with one of its coils struck the hammer, which was down upon the cap at the time, hard enough to discharge the gun, the contents of which entered the ball of the hand near the wrist, and, in a diagonal direction, came out between the junction of the little finger and the one next to it. Happily no bones were broken.

SENTENCE OF A LAND WARRANT FORGER.

Garrett G. Shufeldt a German lawyer, was last week sentenced, by Judge Ingersoll, of the U. S. District Court, to seven years' hard labor in the Sing Sing Prison, for attempting to procure a land warrant for Ann Sheridan on a forged power of Attorney. The Judge said he should have made it ten years had not the jury recommended the prisoner to mercy on account of his wife and nine children, who will thus be left destitute of support.

Our State Works.

The editors of the Hollidaysburg Register, in an article on the subject of the evils and corruptions of the present system of carrying on our Public Works, very truly say:

What began in right, party politics has corrupted for money. What should have been a monument of pride is now a monument of shame. Our State improvements now breed more dishonestly, speculation, and even petty larceny, than all other hot beds of vice in our land. The partisan idler and drone; the party pimp, and pauper—the hold plunderer, and the cunning cheat—hide and harbor and get fat and sleek along upon our canals and railroads. Emboldened by the success of their predecessors, and the easy familiarity with which State officers, toy with the public treasure, they become impudent in their shame, and treat as a pleasant joke, conduct which a few years ago would have been called theft. The most successful now, is deemed the most shrewd. The talent for taking care of yourself is the best recommendation to place.

There is a girl in Troy, New York, aged 12 years, of French parentage, whose face is almost entirely covered with hair of a dark color and about two inches long. She is intelligent, fond of books, and attends school regularly.

HORSE MACKEREL.—Mr. Wm. Alexander, while fishing last week, near Rock Cod Lodge, about 15 miles from Portland, Maine, caught a horse mackerel, weighing 500 lbs. 10 feet long, and 7 in circumference. He took him with a cod hook and worrying him out, he finally secured him. There being no one with him in the boat but his little boy, he had to tow him to a schooner, near, before he could take him. It is a splendid fish, resembling in all parts a mackerel, but on a giant scale.

Mr. G. P. McLane, of Mississippi, and others, partially explored a cave last week in Hulenburg County, about ten miles south of Greenville. The cave was first discovered last Winter by a person who tracked several raccoons into it. Mr. McLane and his companions went in, as they supposed, about two miles, when they came to a pit which they could not pass for the want of a ladder, but they saw that the cave extended beyond. While travelling the two miles, they discovered eight or ten branches leading off in different directions, some of them apparently larger than the direct avenue. A petrified monkey, as perfect in shape as if it were alive, was found in the cave some weeks ago, and we understand that it has been sent to the World's Fair in New York.

Brute Power.

The Parkersburg (Va.) Gazette says the following strange incident was communicated by one whose staid and truthful character is a sufficient guarantee against hoaxing:

"While passing through a sparsely settled section of an adjoining county recently, he found a farmer breaking ground after this novel fashion—died held the plough, which was propelled by two of his children, a boy and a girl! About one quarter of an acre was turned up in this way, but much more remained to be dragged over by this hapless yoke of humans. There was a brute power behind and not before the plough. Out of respect for its other inhabitants, we will not name the county in which this brutal exhibition was witnessed.

Alberti, the Hangman Kidnapper.

Bigler's friend Alberti is most unquestionably a creature of the vilest character that ever breathed the breath of life; and it is strange that such a beast should command the good of any one professing to possess a heart, and strange still that an Executive of such a State as Pennsylvania could descend so low as to affiliate to such a degree with such a scoundrel as to release him from the Penitentiary and turn him loose again to prey upon society. The following picture of this friend of Gov. Bigler is from the Philadelphia Register, and is as true as it is graphic:

Who has not heard of Alberti? He is the man in the black mask who figures at every gallows scene. His business is to place the fainting wretch under the noose, to adjust the knot under the left ear, to let fall the drop and take charge of the corpse. When Spring was hung, no one needed to be told that Alberti was on the scaffold, that he looked curiously for the black stream to spout from his nostrils, and cracked his ribald jokes over the livid clay. This is his vocation; men and nature have attributed it to him. The ponderous marble jaws of the Penitentiary vomited him out, that he might pursue it. An execution was once expected at Lancaster; Alberti volunteered an offer to the Sheriff to strangle the victim handsomely, and to receive, in full payment of his services, the cord and corpse. Do not imagine quiet, gentle, milk-hearted reader, that there is shame in this creature; that he shinks from the eye of man, and lives in the darkest corner of some cellar or dungeon, afraid that honest men who meet him will stay him. No; he glories in the isolation in which he lives. A grim smile plays over his countenance when men cross the street to avoid meeting him, when children cease their sports at his approach, and huddle together like chickens that dread the fall swoop of a hawk; or when the frequenters of the low groceries he favors hush their boisterous and noisy talk as he enters, draw away from the counter, and leave him to drink in silence and alone. Those who have once heard his voice, are haunted ever after by its harsh and grating tones. Speak to him, if you are curious, and he will tell you, in his drawing way, how his fiendish fancy has led him to festoon winding sheets about his bed, and curtain the windows of his chamber with the grave clothes of men he has hung.

But, thank heaven, there are not enough executions even here to enrich this monster. To supply his wants, he has culminated with his business of hangman, that of a kidnapper and slave-catcher.—There is not, in a southern paper, an advertisement of a fugitive slave, that does not find its way to Alberti. No colored man arrives here but Alberti knows it, through his spies, and compares his person with the advertisement description.—Fearful of being deceived by his wretched agents, he prowls about himself in the quarters where the negroes reside, peeping into houses, and entering them under all sorts of pretenses. He is the evil genius of the region about Lombard street.—If a negro family hears a noise when seated around the supper table, they look to the window in fear, half expecting to see Alberti looking through, with his nose flattened against a pane. If a negro is unprotected, Alberti finds a master for him, which is the safer plan, or kidnaps him, if nothing else will do. Once on the track of a fugitive, he follows it like a shut-hound. Nothing stops him. Perjury, corruption of officers, legal chicanery—any means are good which enable him to pocket the reward offered for a human being.

Perilous Encounter with a Shark.

On the 30th of April, while five young soldiers, stationed at Corfu, were sailing along at a rapid rate, the boat in which they were received a sudden shock as if it had run upon a rock, which nearly capsized her. One of the soldiers having looked over the side, perceived a large shark swimming close to the boat, but it disappeared on his throwing a bottle at it. A number of porpoises were also about, and one of these was harpooned by a soldier named Flowers, son of Mr. Flowers, chimney-sweeper, Theatre street, Warwick. On being struck, the porpoise immediately diving, and the line being entangled round the arm of a soldier named Hanson, he was dragged into the water. Flowers seeing Hanson about thirty yards from the boat making for a rock, turned the boat in that direction and nearly overtook him, but when within about six yards of him, one of his companions cried out that there was a shark going towards Hanson. Flowers seized a knife which stuck in the side of the boat, plunged head first into the water, and diving underneath the shark turned himself on his back, and thrust, the knife into the belly of the monster in several places; but it was of little use, the shark having seized upon Hanson, and taken his leg off near the knee. Flowers then endeavored to get his comrade on his back, but both of them were nearly exhausted. He succeeded, however, in getting him into the boat, and wound up the wound with his shirt. When they reached the hospital their unfortunate comrade was nearly dead with exhaustion, but after a short time recovered. While on their way they captured the wounded shark, and towed it on shore. It weighed 234 pounds, and when opened, the leg was found in its throat, the bone mangled to bits. The body of the shark has been placed in the Sailors' Home, of Corfu.

WIDOW, WIFE, MAID.

An instance has recently occurred in Cincinnati in which a lady was a maid, a wife and a widow, all in one day. Mrs. McConnell, wife of the man who was so cruelly murdered on Front Street, had married her husband on the morning of the same day on which the fatal affray occurred. At noon a maid, at noon a wife, at evening a widow!

The painters of New York city are on a strike for $2 per day.

Important Invention.

The London papers just received announce the following invention, which, if the promises here given should be verified is likely to prove of extensive utility:

John W. Bennett has discovered a very effectual means of preserving writings, charts, bank bills, and pictures, as well from injury by time as from forgery or alteration. The process is a most simple one, and consists merely of running a very delicate coating of gutta percha solution over the surface of the article. It is perfectly transparent, and is said to improve the appearance of pictures. By coating both sides of an important document it can be kept in the best preservation. It renders it waterproof, and the plan would thus be valuable for ship charts. If used on bank bills it would be a most efficient means of preventing fraud, inasmuch as no alteration could be made on the face of the bill without removing the coating, which it would be impossible to do without destroying the whole.

A public man at the South is thus politically limed by a local paper:

A corn complexion—somewhat red—
Wry looks to scare the crows:
A monstrous great big cabbage head—
A mammoth turn up nose.

Have You Seen the Comet?

The tailed orb that recently hove in sight in the north-western section of the 'sea of space' has been steadily pursuing its voyage sunward during the past ten days, and is now supposed to be as near as it can get to the centre of our system. In astronomical parlance, it has reached its perihelion, or thereabouts. There is no chance of a collision, however, for although the long-tailed locomotive runs on a single track, it will not approach within thirty millions of miles of old Sol, unless it should dart from its orbit—a contingency which the absence of blind curves, switches, draws, and thick-headed conductors, on the 'air lines' above, renders it in the highest degree improbable. The brilliant visitor now pursuing its parabolic journey within our field of vision was first discovered at Cotingen, last June. Its apparent size is about that of a large tadpole, and it is a good deal more luminous than some of the descriptions of it.
